

I RISE TO REMARK

BY JOHN PHILLIPS

A few days after the election, I received a letter from a friend in Orange County. He asked me to figure out the "line-up" in the new Congress. The question is interesting; more interesting as it reveals a characteristic of our government. The party label does not indicate how a Member will vote.

We go back, on December 31st, to adjourn the 80th Congress. After January 3rd, when the 81st Congress convenes, the Senate will have 54 Democrats and 42 Republicans. Senator Taylor, of Idaho, who ran on the Wallace ticket, is listed as a "Democrat." Senator George, or Senator Byrd, on one hand, and Senator Pepper, on the other, will be "Democrats." Senator Taft and Senator Morse will be listed as Republicans.

We have never accepted the European tendency to form minor parties. I rise to remark, I hope we never will. With 19 parties in pre-war France or Germany, and the "Radical Socialist" party of France actually more conservative than the "Socialist" party, you can see the possibilities of confusion; the resulting coalitions, and a reason for the weakening of governments.

In the House, after January 3rd, there will be 262 Democrats, 172 Republicans, 1 American Labor party member. I have tried to determine the division on a basis of voting inclinations. The States Rights' ticket has 33 electoral votes, or 32 Members in the House. Two of the electors from Tennessee said they would vote States Rights. If they bespeak their Districts, there are 34 such votes in the House.

Suppose we figure 200 Democratic votes following Administration leadership. It requires 218 to pass a measure, on roll call. There will be 172 Republicans, but not over 160 who follow party lead. Allow 25 votes, to follow union-labor leaders, and four leftist votes, at least one of which regrettably, will be from California. The 34 States Rights votes could hold the balance of power, leaving a dozen doubtfuls, sick or vacancies.

Thus, a group of Jeffersonian Democrats, conservative, firm adherents to the Constitution, united on the principles of states rights, hold a balance of power. Since no one force or group was responsible for the result on November 2nd, no one program can prevail.

Labor may hope to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act, but the farmers, who did more to elect Mr. Truman, will not agree. The farmers will want support prices, and the city people, through labor papers, have been convinced this is a cause of high prices. Social programs, desired by the youth vote, which was as effective as the farmers or labor, will mean higher taxes, and old voters, and white collar workers, will fear inflation. Rural areas will demand economy, but federal employees, who could have held a decisive balance November 2nd, will fear economy could mean the loss of jobs. Both houses have majorities of the same Members who voted to override the Presidential vetoes on labor-management, and on tax reductions.

Honestly, folks, under those conditions, when even a crystal ball would blow a gasket, would you rather be a member of the Majority Party, who has to take responsibility in the resulting confusion, or a member of the Minority Party, who has only to sit back comfortably, and write letters to his friends at home?

Nicaragua Movie At Anaheim Public Forum

"Nicaragua: Land of Opportunity," a motion picture lecture by Howard O. Welty, will be presented at the Anaheim Public Forum Monday, November 22, Forum director, Ralph Focht announced today. The free program, to be given in the Anaheim high school auditorium, will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Color motion pictures of the largest republic in Central America were taken by photographer Welty at the invitation of Nicaraguan President. The film shows the once-proposed route of the Isthmian canal and gives an authentic view of the Central American people and their customs.

Welty, who was a personal guest of President Smoza while making plans for the film about Nicaragua, has spent many summers in Mexico, South and Central America. He is considered an authority on Latin American life, customs, and on Pan-American relations.

Next Monday's forum lecture is next to the last of the Anaheim series. The final program, scheduled for November 29, will feature Robert Merrifield, whose topic is "The Lord's Footsteps."

600 Attend Catholic Ham Benefit Dinner And Bazaar At Club House

The Catholic ham dinner at the Women's Club last Monday evening was a tremendous success both socially and financially with over 600 people served during the hours of 5:30 and 8 o'clock. All proceeds are to go toward the new church, St. Pius V soon to be erected in Buena Park.

The dinner, consisting of salad, main dish, ice cream, and coffee, was well received by the long line of people who appeared for the affair. The committee under the direction of Mrs. Nace Heavrin did a splendid job in planning and arranging for the event in view of the fact that no one missed out in getting a portion of the ham. With the price at only $1.00 it was the nearest thing to a free lunch this reporter has observed.

Entertainment

An excellent program of entertainment under the direction of chairman Frank O'Brien who acted as Master of Ceremonies was presented during and after the meal. Although somewhat hampered without a microphone the talent was good and did an excellent job in reaching the audience under adverse conditions.

Appearing on the program were Mary De Mello and Betty Lorraine doing an accordion duet, "Bugle Call Rag," and "Now is the Hour," Mary Lou Heavrin and Barbara Hayes did a novelty number in costume, "Buttons and Bows," Mrs. Rose Kasper, piano solo, "La Campanella," a quartet made up of Mary De Mello, Betty Lorraine, Kitty Smith and Rose Kasper, sang "Four Leaf Clover" and Barbara Hayes added a tap dance.

An accordion solo was presented by Karen Lenain "Sharpshooters" and the "Anniversary Waltz." Mrs. Lawrence Smith, choir director and star of the show sang, "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," and "A Little Bit of Heaven." Mrs. Smith and Frank O'Brien then did a duet "I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen."

Jackie Mancebo sang "My Adobe Hacienda," and the quartet closed the program with "Don't Fence Me In," and "Goodbye Little Darling."

Cakes Auctioned

Frank O'Brien auctioned off three cakes for some very fancy prices. He also officiated at the drawing for three prizes, a quilt valued at $100, a lamp at $25, and a silver hot plate.

Mrs. Nace Heavrin, Chairman of the Dinner committee was aided by Mrs. Ann Berns, kitchen chairman; and Mrs. Sly, co-chairman. Others on the committee were Mrs. rete herzog, Mrs. Vessels, Mrs. Tokar, Mrs. Jacques, Mrs. McIntyre, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Fry, Mrs. Grierly, Mrs. Guglielmana, Mrs. Grizzle, Mrs. Fenton, Mrs. McCoy, Mrs. Hayes, Mrs. Ponter, Mrs. Fenton, Mrs. O'Brien.

The dining room chairman was Mrs. Rose Cannon assisted by Mrs. L. La Prairie. Others serving on this committee were Mrs. G. La Prairie, Miss Heavrin, Miss King, Miss Brierty, Irene and Jackie Mancebo, Miss Burke, Miss Ferreira, Miss Cardoza, Miss Hazlett, Miss Jacques.

In addition to Reverend Frederick Kass, pastor of St. Pius V parish, other priests present were the Reverends Michael J. Carlos and Frank Deane, both of St. Mary's, Fullerton.

42nd Annual TB Seal Sale to Start

"Last year there were 40 deaths from tuberculosis and 156 cases were discovered in Orange County," said Reverend Fred W. Niedringhaus in announcing the opening of the 42nd Annual Christmas Seal Sale of the Orange County Tuberculosis and Health Association on November 22. Orange County residents will receive their Christmas Seals in the mail, and postal employees have been alerted to handle the influx.

Niedringhaus, Chairman of the Seal Sale Campaign, called for county-wide support of the Seal Sale and asked residents to "open your hearts in the best Christmas tradition—buy and use Christmas Seals generously" for they protect your home and mine from tuberculosis. Our battle to end this disease will not be concluded until every hidden case of TB is found and properly treated. For every case we find now, there are at least three cases we do not find. Our goal is to have every citizen in the county over 15 years of age receive a chest X-Ray. As long as there is a single case of tuberculosis in our communities it can strike anywhere at anytime, for tuberculosis is catching - it is transmitted from one person to another," Niedringhaus said.

In citing the work of the Tuberculosis Association whose sole support is the Christmas Seal Sale, Niedringhaus stated that last year's campaign paid for nearly 12,000 miniature X-Rays for high school and junior college students, residents and military personnel in the county; 1,263 large diagnostic X-Rays; an Occupational Therapy program in the Sanatorium which has stimulated recovery for many tuberculosis patients; streptomycin, a life saving drug for treatment of TB; public information programs about tuberculosis before thousands of students and community groups.

KIWANIS PRESIDENT-ELECT ATTENDS DISTRICT PARTY

Frank Noe, president-elect of division four of the Kiwanis club attended the installation party at the Santa Ana Masonic Temple, Wednesday evening. Noe of Cypress is expected to take over the duties of president at the end of this year when he relieves the incumbent, L. M. Renaker. Other local people attending the party were Hap Wiley, and William Nelson.

Zoning Hearing Postponed Until March 17

The hearing on zoning for Cypress was held Wednesday afternoon in Santa Ana before the Board of Supervisors but no progress was made so the hearing was postponed until March 17.

A. E. Arnold of Cypress spoke for the Chamber of Commerce. There were about 16 people present at the hearing. Ten of them spoke in favor of allowing business expansion on Lincoln avenue between Miller road and Hanson road.

More Rent For Landlords With Small Holdings

With only seven short form petitions pending for rent increases based on substantial hardship in the Long Beach area rent office, C. H. Blaylock, associate area rent director expressed his surprise that many "small landlords" have not as yet taken advantage of the new streamlined procedure afforded them since July 10, 1948, to petition for higher rents based on increased taxes and costs of operation.

"Apparently many landlords have not become aware of their opportunity, or are not clear as to who is eligible to use the most simplified procedure yet devised to seek higher rents due to increased expenditures," said Blaylock.

"There have been frequent complaints in the past that existing procedures for petitioning for rent increases demanded ruler records than are usually kept by the 'small non-professional landlord'."

"We now have the simplified short form for owners of four units or less, on which they can petition for rent increases based on higher taxes alone, or higher costs of fuel, utilities, and insurance, in addition to taxes."

"As yet, however," Blaylock said, "there has been no great response to this opportunity."

Blaylock stated that his office has granted, on the average, 49 percent of all short form hardship petitions received from landlords for rent increases. The amount of the increase granted is set by the area rent office based on the figures supplied in the petition.

That the VFW is making a worthy gesture by offering to sponsor the local Boy Scout troop and anyone interested in acting as Scoutmaster should contact Carl Markel.

Age & Blind Aid Proponents Ask Representation

"The majority of the people of California have apparently expressed their approval of Proposition 4, Age and Blind Aid," George H. McLain, sponsor of the pension amendment, pointed out today.

"In the face of efforts to upset the Democratic processes and guaranteed constitutional rights of the people, it seems strange that the governor has not called in representatives of both sides of the question. Instead, he appears to be consulting only a few state officials, such as State Finance Director James S. Dean and Charles M. Wollenberg, who will be removed as state welfare director by Proposition 4. These men have opposed the aged and blind aid measure from the start, and could not be reasonably expected to be sympathetic now."

"The proponents of Proposition 4 are ready now as they always have been to consult with the Governor or anyone in authority," McLain emphasized. "We welcome any consultation which will result in benefit to the people of California."

Cypress VFW To Sponsor Local Boy Scout Troop

The Cypress VFW Post No. 3847 voted to sponsor the local Boy Scout troop at the last regular meeting which was held at the Scout hall with Commander Biggs presiding. Anyone interested in the job of Scoutmaster is requested to contact Carl Markel, Anaheim 6-0154. All officers were present and accounted for.

The post also voted to conduct Friday night bingo parties commencing November 19. The first two parties will be restricted to members and auxiliary and their friends only. When chairs and tables are obtained to accommodate a larger crowd the bingo games will be opened to the general public.

Adjutant O'Leary announced that 2nd District Commander W. G. Keel will inspect the post on January 6, 1949. The post voted to cancel a meeting which will fall on the Thanksgiving night to January 6, 1949, and conduct all business on that night. The December regular meetings will be held on the 2nd and 4th Thursdays.

Action on proposed building sites has been set aside until incorporation papers have been approved and returned.

Family-Way Doe Stolen From Cypress Home

A rabbit due for a litter of bunnies at the end of November was stolen from the home of Mrs. Chester Larkin of 9741 Denni road last week. Two men were seen making a get-away with the squealing doe after Chester Alvin Jr. fired a shot over the car which he described as a two seated Ford coupe.

Mrs. Larkin wishes it known that the doe is not good to eat but that if the men want the doe badly enough and are willing to take care of it they may pick up its breeding papers at the mail box in front of the house.

Mrs. Larkin also said that they had been losing a turkey each night and didn't know whether a coyote or a two legged animal was responsible for the theft. The doe episode bears out that the latter animal was undoubtedly the culprit in both instances.

Cypress Teachers Attend Institute

The Cypress Elementary school teachers were in attendance at the annual Orange County Institute held last week in Fullerton. The morning speaker was Dr. Shen-yi who spoke on "American Responsibility in China." Following the speaker's address the teachers went to an 11:30 lunch.

The institute reconvened at 2 o'clock and listened to Dr. Willard Gosling, Superintendent of Pasadena City Schools speak on the profession of teaching.

A music program followed in which the combined orchestras of Santa Ana, Anaheim, and Fullerton rendered several selections in unison. It was well received.

Miss Dickerson, district superintendent said that the Institute was the best organized one she had ever attended. There were 1800 teachers from Orange County at the meeting.

NEW MANAGER OF LOS ALIMITOS DRY CLEANERS

V.F.W. AUXILIARY NEEDS HELP

LOS ALAMITOS FIREMEN SEEK RESUSCITATOR

The Volunteer Fire department is planning a series of benefits to raise funds to buy a resuscitator, Frank Wate, publicity chairman, announced recently.

The new equipment is needed to revive persons overcome by smoke, victims of heart attacks, and other ailments. Nearest such equipment at present is located in Long Beach and Midway City.

The long awaited Open House day and official dedication of the new Cypress Fire department building completed recently will be held on December 11, 1948, commencing at 7 o'clock in the evening and extending to a late hour, according to an announcement by Pat Arnold, Chief of the local Volunteer Fire Department.

Speakers for the dedication will be James Baker, Supervisor of the 3rd district, and Willard Smith, Chairman of the Board of Supervisors. The latter is expected to make the official dedication.

A program of entertainment has been arranged and will be featured by an appearance of Val Moore's Dancing School girls doing the "Hula" and several other numbers. Coffee and doughnuts will be served to all attending the function. After the "Hula" dancing the orchestra will play for general dancing from 9 to midnight.

Watch the Enterprise for more details of the event in later issues.

County Officials Survey Fire Ravage; Plan Ahead

(BY GEORGE HART)

In the wake of Orange County's greatest fire, with 46,000 acres of finest watershed gone with the wind, full scope of damage today defied assessment, and county authorities turned, instead, to the problem of preventing further vital damage, from the belated rains—rains that could have saved the watershed a few days ago, but now present a menace to denuded hills.

While delving into the prodigious program of seeding the burnt area with quick-growing black mustard, sown from planes, officials looking back over the desolate battlefield where 2,000 men fought the flames for seven days and nights in the teeth of a howling gale found considerable pride and consolation in the manner of the struggle. But for the alert strategy of the defensive campaign, the selfless cooperation between the organized forces engaged, and the stubborn determination of the fighters on the fire fronts, the fire and its devastation would have been immeasurably greater, they realized.

It was a time when co-operation paid off. State division of forestry, in both Orange and Riverside counties, the U. S. Forest Service, local volunteer fire companies in the county, military personnel from El Toro Marine air station and March field, and local operators of spray rigs volunteering in the emergency, performed together like clock work and covered themselves with glory, said Chairman Willard Smith of the county board of supervisors. Not only as a board chairman but also as supervisor from the district in which the fire was located. Smith was on the ground or closely in touch at all times.

It was a combination of foresight, cooperation and determination that massed men and equipment at critical danger points in time to save Irvine park, the homes in Silverado canyon and at Cerro Vista heights, Villa Park, as well as limiting the burn to the lower slopes of Lemon Heights.

When a river of fire rolled down adjacent Peters canyon within three hours after it climbed the rim of Santa Ana canyon more than 10 miles distant.

Even so, the fire damage admittedly has been appalling. No one has estimated how much an acre of watershed is worth, but nearly 50,000 acres are lost, covering about 25 per cent of the watershed feeding Irvine reservoir.

There was heavy loss of game—deer, rabbits, quail, doves—as wild life fled before the sweep of flames that had the speed of the wind that carried it across ridges and canyons. Fire fighters told stories of rabbits scurrying out of the fire with air ablaze, rushing like living torches into dry brush or grass and thus starting new fires. The rubber watering troughs recently placed at vantage points for quail, by the Izaak Walton League and U. S. Forest Service, were mostly burned. The "likes" now are planning to seed reed into the burned area for sore-footed deer that survived the fire.

Private damage also was heavy. The Irvine company lost miles upon miles of burned fence. Telephone and Edison lines also were destroyed in some areas, but these utility companies ran emergency lines into the danger areas and maintained uninterrupted service for the fire-fighters.

But only four or five minor structures were burned and there was no loss of life, a real tribute to efficient fire fighting under the most dreaded conditions—drought, virtually zero humidity, and a volcanic gale. The combination of wind and gale sometimes appeared to defy puny human effort, but were conquered when they had to be conquered. Only structures destroyed were a small shop building at the east end of Irvine dam, a small wood building at the west end of the dam, a vacant shack in Black Star canyon west of Hidden ranch, a small cabin and a residence in Baker canyon and Ben Johnson's cabin in lower Laurel canyon.

CHANGING CONSUMER BUYING HABITS

Recently your editor had the pleasure of attending a dinner of the California Newspaper's Advertising Association in Los Angeles. A very interesting speaker was on hand to act as moderator of the after-dinner panel discussion of the problems of advertising from both the merchants and newspaper publishers end. He did a splendid job of leading a very frank discussion of the changing buying habits of the American public. His name was Charles Larrain of Famous department stores.

In a brief way here is what he said. The lush market of war and post-war boom is over. The people have changed their buying habits in a radical sort of way. An extensive survey was made recently in New York to find out just how people were shopping; here is what they found.

People were divided into three classifications, high income, $12,000 or more; middle income, $6,000 or slightly more; and last $3,000 or less. In the low income group it was found that 100 per cent have changed their buying habits so that now they buy nothing except on valid sales and markdowns. In the middle group the survey revealed that 50 per cent of the people have changed their shopping habits to bargains only. In the high income group they really got a surprise when they found that 33 per cent of these people were also looking for bargains. This last group is the old stand-by group who can be counted on to buy without considering price. But now one-third of them are looking for bargain basement entrances.

How has this effected the market? Well, fashion stores which have hitherto catered to the lush market have had a change of heart. They also are seeking their market from the mass buyers. It seems that the buying public is well aware that too many products are marked too high and are refraining from purchasing until they see something they need selling for a low price. The shift in high income groups is something entirely new to merchants and has never happened before.

discussion was that advertising copy in order to sell Another interesting point brought out in the lively must say something valid about the product offered for sale. More explanatory copy of the item must be given the public or they will not buy what you are trying to sell.

What has this to do with Cypress? Just this, that prices are so high at the present that a consumer gains absolutely nothing by buying from large stores. A careful check will reveal that your local merchant is competing quite successfully with the larger ones. Very little difference, if any, can be found in the prices of articles whether they be electric appliances, tires, hardware, or foodstuffs. So at the present the local merchant has an excellent chance to acquire the confidence of the consumer by creating good will and giving the consumer exactly what he wants even if it means making a special trip to the wholesaler to get the item.

MARKET AT OUR DOOR

California's phenomenal population growth is presenting a new and highly welcome challenge to the state's agricultural capacity. In certain lines of productivity—poultry products and milk, for example—the people's appetite is taxing the best efforts of chickens and cows to keep up with local demands.

For those who like figures, the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce reports that the 1,625,567 new residents in the Southland keep 3,200,000 hens and 48,790 cows working overtime. It's clear that metropolitan area food production generally is not keeping pace with population increases.

The story is the same on both sides of the Tehachipi. As population expands (there are now more people in California than in any other state, except New York and Pennsylvania) the demand for home-grown foodstuffs expands with it on a scale that provides ready marketing outlets for millions of dollars of fruits, vegetables, grains and dairy products.

That's all to the good. One of the California farmer's most pressing problems has always been the profitable sale of crops in markets hundreds and even thousands of miles removed from his farm. It's still a problem that's far from solved.

But it's top-flight news to learn that the state's own citizens are rapidly creating one of the biggest and most easily supplied markets for the California farmer.

4 - H JUNIOR

LEADERS' CONFERENCE

A coming 4-H Club event is the Junior Leader's Conference to be held Saturday, November 20 at the Farm Bureau Building, 353 S. Main Street, Orange. The meeting will begin at 10:00 a.m. and continue until 1:00 p.m. Junior Leaders will be instructed for the coming year as to their responsibilities.

A program in which the Junior Leaders themselves may participate has been planned. It will include a general session to outline the procedure for the day, an explanation of the Junior Leader record book, and a brief talk on the history of 4-H. This will be presented by Nancy Bascom, a senior member of the Tustin Junior Livewires. The conference will then be divided into two groups, agricultural and home economics. These groups will hold round table discussions on 4-H projects, demonstrations, recreation and other 4-H subjects.

Those who attended the statewide Junior Leader Conference at Davis in September will tell of the subject matter presented there.

After a summary session to cover the important points and conclusions reached by the two groups, the meeting will be adjourned for a paper sack lunch.

Local Club Plans
Christmas Party

A recent Tuesday afternoon's meeting of the Cypress Community club took place in the lunch room of the Cypress school with Mrs. Ruth Redmayne, Mrs. James Bryant and Mrs. Frank Noe as hostesses. Mrs. Russell Flynn acted as secretary in the absence of Mrs. A. H. Stempel.

Plans were made for the annual Christmas party which will take place on December 14 and will be held in the new fire hall. Turkey for the dinner will be furnished by the club, with the remainder of the menu to be contributed by the members. A Christmas tree and a gift exchange will also be featured. Mrs. Roy Miller and Mrs. Kenneth Young will have charge of the party.

Appointed on a committee to nominate officers for the coming year were Mrs. Otto Switzer, Mrs. Merton Jones and Mrs. Milam Williams.

Mrs. Roy Miller volunteered to accompany Mrs. Joe Fernandez and Mrs. Jones on the next trip to the old men's annex at the Orange County Hospital and bring cookies, fruit and cider to the patients. Mrs. Williams was winner of the mystery package, the money from which is used to buy the treats for the patients in the hospital.

Two visitors who later signified their intention of becoming members were Mrs. Clarence Wheat and Mrs. Ardena Moon. Seasonal refreshments of pumpkin pie with whipped cream and coffee were served at the end of the meeting.

Annual Band
Review Parade
In Long Beach

Donald Duck, Walt Disney's famous cartoon character, will be the honorary grand marshal of the eighth annual All Western Band Review to be held in Long Beach Friday evening, November 26.

Disney's comic strip hero is actually Clarence Nash, one-time Hollywood character actor who auditioned for the job as Donald's voice when the popular series of animated cartoons first began. Since that first release, Nash has made an almost permanent occupation of being the garbled sound effect for Donald's animated antics on the screen.

Nash will ride on the colorful Santa Claus float and will be accompanied by a real live duck, which is his constant companion on personal appearances such as the band review. The float will be outfitted with a public address system, and Nash will carry on a constant stream of garbled "duck" talk along the parade route.

Last year more than half a million persons jammed downtown streets to witness the competition, and this year Junior Chamber of Commerce and Long Beach city officials, co-sponsors of the event, are getting prepared for an overflow crowd of more than three quarters of a million spectators.

TRAVELOGUE

Written by W. C. Miller, former publisher of West Orange County publishing company.

Highway 20 finally crawled out of the Malheur River canyon at Juntura and struck off across the low hills of the desert. Mile after mile we followed this very uninteresting country. We finally turned south on 395 but the scenery did not improve for several hours. Having spent the night before fighting wind and mosquitoes the desert began to put me to sleep. Several times I found myself dozing at the wheel so I pulled to the side of the road and had about a half hour sleep.

Finally we came to the great dry bed of Lake Abert. The north end of the lake is dry and the south end is as white as a new washed sheet. The dry lake and the wet cover a stretch of about 22 miles. The lower half of the lake is beautiful; in between two ridges of hills but there is nothing that lives in the water. It appears to be a shame that this great body of water in such a dry country can not be used. It has some sort of potash deposit that keeps even the ducks from landing.

Below the lake the valley becomes fertile and there are stock ranches to break the monotony. At Lake View we turned west on Highway 66 which entered the hills and we were relieved of the desert. We were soon in the Klamath Indian Reservation and the quaint homes were interesting. We camped over night at the edge of Math Falls about ten o'clock in the reservation and came to Klamath Falls. Klamath Falls is really a booming city. Every store, every service station, all the mills, all establishments of any kind appear to be having a fire sale or something. Great trucks of logs rumble down the streets at break neck speed. Every body is in a hurry. We were glad to be through the city and out on Highway 97, Shasta bound.

At the state line we were relieved of our cherries. Susan had about five pounds of the big beauties she had purchased in Boise. The Inspector said no Idaho cherries admitted to California. He said that we couldn't eat all that we wanted so we stopped in the shade of the station and we four attempted to eat about ten pounds of cherries. We entered California very unhappy and in discomfort. The highway skirts the mountain on the west and we took highway 89 to Shasta. 89 skirts the mountain on the south and passes through the unique city of McCloud. McCloud is almost under the white topped peak of Shasta. Six miles out of McCloud is Camp Flour on the McCloud River. This is one of the most beautiful camps in California and it was here we spent some happy days.

ours, Sargum Sprout

Veteran's Guide

HOME OWNERS
One California veteran out of three, approximately, is a homeowner.

The State Department of Veterans Affairs, releasing a survey of veterans' property tax exemptions in all 58 counties, figures it out this way:

First, there are an estimated 1,700,000 veterans in California. Second, the survey shows that 491,860 of them took advantage in 1948 of the 11,000 exemption provided by State law on the assessed valuation of their property.

Third, add to this a reasonable figure for the home-owning veterans who did not receive exemptions—those who acquired ownership too late to file for the year, those whose total property holdings are above the $5,000 valuation ceiling set by State law, and those who neglected to apply for the exemption.

This gives a total somewhere between 550,000 and 600,000, or about one-third of the veteran population of the state.

The Department of Veterans Affairs report is based on figures submitted by assessors of all 58 counties for the four years beginning with 1945.

In that year the exemptions came to only 202,118 throughout the state. In 1946 they rose to 279,390, and the following year to 392,398; then to 491,860. The last figure is 143 percent higher than the first one.

The increase was common to every county, ranging on a percentage basis from only 22 percent in Alpine County (only 11 exemptions this year), to 262 percent in Contra Costa, with Ventura County a close runner-up at 256 percent. The largest county represented, Los Angeles, showed a jump of 153 percent in the three-year interval.

Lawrence C. Stevens, State Director of Veterans Affairs, pointed to the spectacular boost in the exemptions not only as a dramatic illustration of the rapidly with which veterans are acquiring their own homes but also as an indirect indication of the rising veteran population of the state.

The exemption is available to veterans who own property valued at less than $5,000, and who file application for it each year between the first Monday in March and the last Monday in May.

LANDSCAPING ART
(By Glenn L. Black)

Among other habits, humans have the annoying one of rounding off the corners at walk intersections, unless some barrier is placed in their way. Thoughtful landscaping will prevent such occurring, or at least discourage it.

For example, at the walk intersection, low growing shrubs might be placed within the angles formed by the walks. Further, if they are set on tamped sand, with sand joints (instead of mortar,) grass seed may be planted between. This provides a more harmonious appearance where the intersection is next to lawn.

Another expedient which might be employed in this instance is that of setting brick diagonally across the angle formed by the walks. Further, if they are set on tamped sand, with sand joints (instead of mortar,) grass seed may be planted between. This provides a more harmonious appearance where the intersection is next to lawn.

Borders for Flower Beds

Those who experience difficulty in mowing grass next to flower borders and beds, where one wheel of the mower drags along in the soil, can overcome the problem by setting a line of brick, cement blocks, or a like material along the edge where the lawn and dirt meet. Set flush with the ground, this edging not only provides a hard wheel surface for the mower, but eliminates tedious edging operations in maintaining a neat lawn.

Use for Trellises

Vines are excellent plants for visually breaking up an uninteresting blank wall space, such as found on a garage. Some vines, however, will literally break the wall up, they cling so tenaciously. Lattices, trellises and similar other supporting devices should be used wherever possible for such vines.

In addition to discouraging building destruction, these supports enable painting and repair operations to go on without ruining the vine at the same time. (This is possible since by removing the support from the wall, the vine still attached to the support, and laying it on the ground it will not upend the vine's roots.

Panel Discussion

Highlights P-T.A.

Meet at Centralia

A recent meeting of the Centralia Parent-Teacher association featured a panel discussion of "What Makes Our Schools Tick."

Joan Campbell, a graduate of Centralia school and a senior at Anaheim high school, speaking for the students, stated that students must be shown the importance of regulations in order to have cooperation, and compared the student court in the high school to the courts of our country. She advised extra-curricular activities to learn the finer things of living and to teach good sportsmanship.

Mrs. Marie Fowler, giving the teacher's point of view, stated that education was a matter of necessity for the people of today and the three R's are the tools to help them live. She stressed the importance of the cooperation of parents and teachers.

Parents desire their children to receive the education and advantages in life that they did not have and expect them to leave school better citizens, was the opinion of Claude Richards, representative of the parent group.

George Andrus spoke for the board of trustees. He stated our school system was thoughtful co-operating effort in character building, the three factors involved being the parent, most important of the three; the student who should engage in activities that will develop character; and the teacher, who give part of their lives to help our children.

James McCoy, bus driver and custodian, spoke of the improvement in transportation and cited the cost of 20 cents per mile in getting an average load of 109 pupils to the school during the past year with 3997 miles having been traveled. He stressed the importance of stopping when a school bus is loading and unloading pupils and cited many instances in his experience, when this was not done. Glen Dysinger, school principal, acted as moderator.
